Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about people's jobs and places of work in communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- Do you like to go to the zoo?
- What's your favorite animal?

Let's Explore!

Peter and Sally both like animals.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Peter: Besides being a sports fan, I also liked animals a lot as a kid. My parents brought me to the Franklin Park Zoo often.
- Sally: Oh, yeah, me too. I remember one visit to the zoo distinctly. I was about 8 years old. I was feeding the camel after my Dad and I went on a ride on top.
- Peter: You rode on a camel? I never got to do that. I actually asked once if I was permitted to ride on the rhinos. I thought they looked so cool.
- Sally: Oh, no. When we went to see the bears, I wanted to feed them too.
- Peter: You're kidding me!
- Sally: No, really! So, I went to ask one of the zookeepers. I said, "May I have some fish to feed the bears?"
- Peter: What did the zookeeper say?
- Sally: He said the bear might ask, "Do you mind if I eat this little girl instead?"

Learning Points

Asking and Giving Permission

When you ask for permission, it is important to be polite.

You often use a modal like can, may, could or would to ask for permission.

You can also ask a Yes or No question like "Is it OK if ... " or "Do you mind ... "

Here are some ways to ask for and give permission.

Asking for Permission	Giving Permission
Could I take a few days off next week?	Sure.
Can I ask you something?	Perhaps.
Would it be alright if I change projects?	Of course.
Do you mind if someone takes my shifts next week?	No problem.
Is it OK if I leave early today?	I don't mind.

Examples:

• Peter: Can I please feed the animals now?

Peter's Dad: Of course, Peter!
